

House Sponsor Zalewski; Chief Co-Sponsors Hatcher, Martwick, Nekritz
Chief Senate Sponsor Mulroe; Chief Senate Co-Sponsors Collins, Delgado, Van Pelt, Cunningham.
Status: Passed Senate 53-1-0 on April 11

SUPPORT ELIMINATION OF FELONY ENHANCEMENT FOR PROSTITUTION

Illinois' felony punishment for a second prostitution offense is an expensive, ineffective penalty that does not reduce crime. Most people in prostitution face chronic homelessness, mental health, or substance abuse issues, and engage in prostitution for basic necessities such as food and shelter. Many prostituted people are victims of human traffickers who force them to engage in commercial sex. Illinois ought to be a leader of national legal reforms that consider prostituted people as victims of human trafficking in need of services rather than as criminal offenders.

Proposed Changes

- Under the proposal, any violation of § 720 ILCS 5/11-14 "Prostitution" would be a Class A misdemeanor.
- Amends § 720 ILCS 5/11-14(b), the sentencing provision for prostitution in the criminal code, by deleting the felony sentence enhancement.

Why This Reform is Needed Now

- Felony prostitution is an expensive waste of diminishing local and state public safety resources. Illinois' Department of Corrections reported 127 felony prostitution admissions for 2012, costing the state $2,011,680. Pretrial detention for those facing felony prostitution charges costs Cook County Department of Corrections between $5.3 to 9.5 million annually.
- Felony prostitution punishments are not deterring crime. A 2007 ICJIA study found that women released from IDOC with sex offenses (92% prostitution) had the highest likelihood of re-arrest for any offense. Many prostituted people report physical violence or coercion by their pimps, including threats, monetary withholding, and verbal abuse – making them victims of human trafficking under federal and state law. Any attempt to penalize them misplaces the criminal responsibility.
- Felony prostitution sentencing is rare in the United States. Only seven other states have a felony prostitution sentencing option for subsequent offenses. (Arizona, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Texas)
- Felony prostitution unfairly targets women for harsher punishments. The "solicitation" offense for customers does not have a felony upgrade for subsequent offenses, or for soliciting near a school, as the "prostitution" offense does. "Solicitation" is rarely enforced. In 2011, when law enforcement charged under the state criminal code, there were 1,875 arrests for prostitution and 95 arrests for solicitation. Since 2010, 370 women have been admitted to IDOC for felony prostitution. Fewer than 10 people in Illinois have ever been convicted of the felony offense of "patronizing a prostitute" since its passage in 2010.

For more information, contact Daria Mueller at 312-945-8147, or Lynne Johnson, policy and advocacy director, Chicago Alliance Against Sexual Exploitation at 309-750-6970.

V14, 2 May 2013

Law Enforcement Supporters

*Cook County State's Attorney Anita Alvarez
Cook County Sheriff Tom Dart
Illinois State's Attorneys Association*

Community Supporters

AIDS Foundation of Chicago	Mujeres Latinas en Acción
AIDS Legal Council of Chicago	My Life, My Choice
A Long Walk Home	One Billion Rising Chicago
Artists United for Social Justice	Pacific Alliance to Stop Slavery
Bridget Gainer, Cook County Commissioner	Pillars
Buy Art Not People	Polaris Project
Cabrini Green Legal Aid	Project IRENE
Catharine MacKinnon, Professor of Law	Prostitution Research & Education
Catharsis Productions	Protestants for the Common Good
Chicago Alliance Against Sexual Exploitation	Rape Victim Advocates
Chicago Coalition for the Homeless	Rockford Urban Ministries
Chicago Legal Advocacy for Incarcerated Mothers	Safer Foundation
Citizen Action/Illinois	San Jose Obrero Mission
Coalition Against Trafficking in Women	Sex Trafficking Survivors United
Cook County Public Defender's Office	Shriver National Center on Poverty Law
CounterQuo	Stop Traffick
DePaul College of Law, Schiller DuCanto & Fleck Family Law Center	The Dreamcatcher Foundation
Demand Abolition, Hunt Alternatives Fund	The EPIK Project
Girls Educational and Mentoring Services	The Institute for Metropolitan Affairs
Illinois Coalition Against Sexual Assault	The Salvation Army PROMISE Program
Illinois Consortium on Drug Policy	The Voices and Faces Project
Illinois Association for Criminal Justice	Traffick Free
League of Women Voters of Illinois	Transitions Global
Lutheran Advocacy-Illinois	Veronica's Voice
Men Can Stop Rape	YWCA Metropolitan Chicago